PIPPETTE'S EMANCIPATION.

BY EDWARD MARSHALL.

CHAPTER II. Copyrighted, 1895. It was while she was alone with him, after her parents and his had gone, that he sat smoking his pipe of gloom and had tobacco, suffering keenly, while she smiled and made a bed with a heart as happy in its sensuous triumph over a difficulty which she had created but to overcome, as her fingers were deft.

For half an hour this was most delicious. The hated lover sat and alternately cursed and pleaded, while she, safe in the knowledge of the alderman and the mayor and the police and the president and the army and the navy, scorned him, and refused to permit him to even so much as touch her hand. It would have been a little pleasanter if he had fiercely rushed upon her, and seizing her, compelled her to scream against her will, and to make a little bed to keep the sorrowful face of her parents out of her mind; but she made the best of what she had, and enjoyed it all. She was emancipated! Pietro was chained to his tone in a way which she had not calculated upon. Majestically, he rose, and the pleading in his face changed to scorn.

Let it be as it is, I go. There are in the sea many good fish of which one fish is but one fish. There are others than you of whom I can catch. Adieu, Pippette! I go to marry the green grocer's lovely daughter, whose eyes are soft as the depths of a well, whose smile is bright as the skies of spring, and who has long looked upon me out of the corners of her eyes. Adieu! Hevens, here was an impossibility come true! While yet in dismayed discomfiture she was trying to contemplate it, Pietro stalked away. Pippette sat down, limp and nerveless. She thought of that horrid grocer's daughter, whose eyes were soft as the depths of a well, whose smile is bright as the skies of spring, and who has long looked upon me out of the corners of her eyes. Adieu!

When she reached the bottom she saw people hurrying through the hall, back toward the course. The great tenement was all aroused. A murmur of many excited voices came to her ears, and she almost fainted from fear. She had come too late, she thought, too late! But, recovering herself, she again sped like the wind to Pietro's room. Into the court she dashed, still screaming. There the sight might well have turned her heart cold.

Death for Pietro! Death for her Pietro! Her handsome, brave, loving and adorable Pietro! For a moment she crouched, shaking in a chair, with her skirt over her head, even by subject terror at what her husband had then set afoot. Then, like lightning, she sprang up, and, screaming, "Pietro! Pietro! Pietro!" she rushed toward the door and, coming rushing through the door and among the stairs.

WRECKING OF UNION PACIFIC

Mistakes Made by a Former Management Proved to Be Irretrievable.

AMBITION WITHOUT SHOW OF PRUDENCE. "There seems to be a preconceived effort on the part of big newspapers outside of Omaha to misrepresent the case of Union Pacific history during the last ten years," said a prominent railroad man yesterday.

"The Chicago Tribune seems to be laboring under an hallucination as to the import of the application of the American Loan and Trust company for a separate receiver over the Oregon Short Line property, and in articles published in its columns, May 27 and 29, greatly misrepresented the absolute facts as they are known to exist heretofore.

"The past and not the present management of the Union Pacific must be held responsible for the present condition of affairs on the 'Overland' system. When the old management relinquished control of the property in 1890, the legacies left to their successors wrought the dismemberment that now is taking place.

"It was the ambition of those who manipulated the property from 1885 to the end of 1890 to build up an immense system and to acquire the best land, consolidation or purchase, controlling interest in the process embraced in the old Union Pacific railway company.

"STARTED WITH BLUNDER. "The lease of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company, with a guarantee of the payment of all fixed charges and 6 per cent dividend on $25,000,000 capital stock, was one of the combinations entering into the property in 1890, the legacies left to their successors wrought the dismemberment that now is taking place.

"When the combination was made of the lines composing the Gulf division, or what is known as the Union Pacific, Denver & Gulf, and the Colorado & Northern, the latter were given to the Gulf division to pay its interest—a mileage of two for one, three for one, or whatever was necessary to pay interest on the Gulf division, being the Colorado & Northern branch, with a mileage of 163 miles, with 60 per cent of the earnings between Denver and Omaha, the main line, with a mileage of 415 miles, but 31 per cent. And yet, under these favorable conditions, reports show that the Gulf division, under the Union Pacific management, was a failure.

"OTHER MISTAKES MADE. "But these are not the only examples of the peculiar policy pursued by the management of the Union Pacific, but the result of the reins of government and trying to bring order out of chaos, in which he found the property.

"A branch line was built in Kansas from Salina to Oakley, parallel with the main line of the Kansas division for 225 miles, which was built to connect the Salina and Rock Island roads, to which reference has been made many times over, and which has been the subject of many bitter words between the Union Pacific and the Rock Island.

"The year 1890 was one of the best in the history of the road. The earnings amounted to $44,000,000, and a surplus was noted of $1,000,000. In 1892 the earnings were $45,025,176, with a surplus of $2,969,757.

The small boy plays it's Decoration day today. He saw the real thing and now he's a pretty good imitator—just as good, in fact, as the multitude of plans made to look like and play like the Kimball, the best on earth. It's child's play to compete with them.
